PRUSSIAN POLITICS .- Troubles Brewing .-TheN.Y.Commercial Advertiser says the highhanded proceeding of the King of Prussia, aided by a Cabinet fully as reactionary and stolid as his Majesty himself, are fast bringing about a crisis in the history of that country. In most constitutional states the Executive bas found it advisable to treat the legislative department with great courtesy, often humoring its whims in order to be allowed greater privileges and patronage. The people have had more reason to dread the evil consequences of court blandishments upon the chidings or threats. Not so, however, in spirit of greater harshness toward "little Fritz" and poor Wilhelmina than the latest William, through his Ministers, undertakes to do toward the deputies of the Prussian people. Had he lived a century and a half ago, he would have cudgeled them; now his subordinates are allowed to scold them like pickpockets. A clause in the constitution gives Ministers the right to speak in the lower House whenever they express a desire to do so, in explanation of their policy or advocacy of any public measures. Of course, this implies that the speeches shall conform to parliamentary usages, whatever these may be recognized to be at Berlin. But M. Bismark, the premier, and General Von Loon, the Ministerat-War, interpret it differently, claiming, in brief, the right of saying what they choose, when they choose, and as they choose, without regard to usages. This ground has been taken so boldly and persisted in so insultingly that legislation has come to a dead halt, to the not improbable outbreak of civil war and the | The young lady at once told him she would serious loss already of Prussian influence in Germany and Western Europe. On a recent occasion this Von Loon, who is exceedingly obnoxious to all but the military aristocratic caste, attempted to make himself heard in spite of the Speaker's protest against his remarks as unparliamentary. Insisting upon his rights as a Minister, the Speaker put on his hat, which broke up the sitting. A scene of wild disorder ensued. The Ministers withdrew and subsequently in a letter to the Speaker announced their determinanot to favor the Assembly with their ence, so long as any restrictions should be imposed upon them. One article of the constitution confers upon that body authority to demand the presence of Ministers; but, say they, inasmuch as the President has violated that fundamental law in imposing restrictions that he had no power to do, the correlative obligation on our part ceases to exist. Though this affair might appear to be comparatively trivial, the greatest issues are involved in it. Some time ago M. Bismark took occasion to badger the House, when the acting President (Von Sybel) let him have matters pretty much his own way. This Ministerial triumph doubtless impelled the War Secretary to undertake a similar aggression; but in the meantime public indignation had manifested itself so strongly that M. Bokum-Dolfs felt it his duty to resist the attempt. The consequence is that matters have come to a dead lock. The Liberal (Fortschritt) party desire a ard, who was making a brief visit to his home. dissolution, in order to make a fresh appeal to | We quote a portion of his speech: the people; but it is understood that the King ed to such a step. The Assembly cannot dissolve itself; though it may meet from time to time, summon Ministers to appear, and then adjourn for one or two weeks. As to voting any appropriations, it is not to be thought of until a reconciliation is effected. These petty controversies are, in fact, but the hands on the face of the political timepiece in that country, the secret machinery working toward such a reorganization of the army as shall place it more completely under the control of the Court and its supporters among the landed aristocracy. The King, the nobility, and the upper ranks of the military, have a definite understanding on this subject; while one great object of the middle and lower classes is to render appointments open to all, instead of being accessible to a mere handful of grandees. But more obnoxious than this is the policy pursued by the Government toward Russia, in surrendering all Polish refugees on Prussian soil to their Muscovite oppressors as deserters. Austria disarms and mprisons them or lets them go at large; Prussia delivers them up as criminals. This is not all. Russian soldiers have crossed the frontiers and invaded both countries in pursuit of fugitives; but in the case of Austria she was obliged to apologize for her conduct and promise to amend it; while the Court of Berlin has never addressed a word of remonstrance on the subject to St. Petersburg. We have already noticed that it has refused to speak out on behalf of the Polish insurgents or their cause, thus taking the most reactionary stand in Europe. All this is producing violent discontents, which have already weakened Prussian influence abroad. Denmark has virtually defied her to put the eats uttered less than a year ago in execu-The Southern and even the Northern German States are one by one repudiating her alliance and linking their destinies with Austria or (commercially) with France. During all this falling away the King remains unmoved. He is personally liked in Berlin for his simplicity of manners and close application; but accepts the smiles of dependents or partisans as evidences of his popularity in all parts of the kingdom, as assurances of his final success. The army is large, well disciplined, and under the command of officers who are mostly in hearty accord with the Court. But the Prussian people are becoming day by day more bitterly estranged from the King and his Cabinet. Two parties in the Chamber-the left and centre-have substantially united in an address to the King, demanding anew a change of Ministry, and warning the King of the fatal consequences of his present policy. The Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 295 to 20, has censured the Ministers' communication referred to above, and also by a large majority has demanded their attendance at the sittings of that body.

A Fortress Monroe correspondent of the National Intelligencer says the most interesting feature of the late election is that the Union men of that vicinity picked out two very marked men to send to the House of Delegates and Senate of Virginia. One was a person who had defied all threats and persecution, and refused to vote the secession ordimance of his State-Mr. Wm. C. Tennis, of Elizabeth City county. He stood by the stars and stripes, and, though a plain and unpretending man, refused to yield. He is yet firm, and still swears by the stars and stripes. He is also a most benevolent man; has done charity to hundreds who have been beggared by the rebellion. This man the Union men took up and triumphantly elected. The other was Mr. Robert Wood, who had been "gobbled up" at the dead hour of night, and sent to a Confederate prison, where for near two years he languished, and whose only offence was that he accepted a Federal office and loved the stars and stripes! He scorned the oath of allegiance to the Confederate States, though offered deliverance on that condition, and stood montil his late release.

The Hon, L. H. Chandler has been elected to Congress from the Norfolk district in Virginia, unanimously. He had filled the post of U.S. Consul at Mantanzas for the past two years, and returned from there to accept the position of U.S. District Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia, to which he had been nominated by the President, but found, much to his surprise, that he had been nominated for Congress by acclamation, his former townsmen and the people of the district having determined he should serve them in that capacity. He therefore had to decline the more lucrative office and the honor conferred upon him by the President, and accept the po-

Assault on a "Local." - One day last week, C. A. Lane, Esq., Representative from Kankakee county in the Illinois Legislature, assaulted Mr. S. P. Smith, Photographer and local writer for the Kankakee Union newspaper. The weapon used by Lane was a hickory club, which Smith took from him, and used it in return upon the head of Lane. Considerable bruising was done, but not much blood shed. Good for the "Local."

FAINT HEART NEVER WON .- A young lady in Fall River was engaged to be married, the time appointed, her parents approved the match, and everything was going on swimmingly. Shooting Affair at Amelia, Ohio .- A sad afair occurred at Amelia, on last Sunday eve-ning, which is a fair indication of the conse-quences that will result if bigotry and fanaticism continue to usurp the throne of reason, common sense, and a regard for law and order. A young Mr. Powell, of Amelia, has been in the habit of wearing a butternut emblem to his watch-chain, which consideraby irritated the abolitionists of that place. They have frequently threatened him with summary punishment if he did not remove the offensive batternut. He bid them defiance, and last Sunday evening he went to church, and as he was entering the door of the meeting house he was confronted by Mr. Aaron Harfield and told that he could not enter that inderstand, was pushed away by Harfield. Young Powell persisted on entering, but the temonstrations of Harfield and others prevent-

We give below the extracts referred to n our editorial columns:

[From the Boston Courier.] We have no serious apprehension of outrage and violence, even as the result of this most stupidly illegal procedure. We can scarcely allow ourselves to speak of the monstrous absurdity of the propositions embodied in Judge Leavitt's opinion, in terms befitting its character. It seems the man must be insane not to comprehend, that the admission of judicial ncompetence to examine into the conduct of the Executive is in fundamental subversion the Executive is in fundamental subversion of all the principles of free government. There is no power in the British Empire above having its authority and its conduct revised in the Courts of Westminster Hall; and the humblest subject of the realm will there find the same redress against the Prime Minister of the State, which he might demand against the humblest of his peers. The English Reports are filled with cases of this character, which might have read Judge Leavitt a useful lesson, if he had been at the pains to examine esson, if he had been at the pains to examine them.

To put, not only the military above the civil power, but to place the Executive Administration above all responsibility, except that of impeachment, before a Legislature of his own packing, is language as revolting to all sense of liberty as it is subversive of all law. Military law, as we have sufficiently shown, only extends to persons in the actual service of the army and navy; and martial law cannot exist in any country so long as the civil tribunals are open for the adminis-tration of justice. Lord Loughborough, in Grant vs. Gould, 2 Henry Black, 69, said: Grant vs. Gould, 2 Henry Black, 69, said Martial law, such as is described by Hale and such also as is marked by Sir William Blackstone, does not exist in England at all * * * "which was contrary to the Consti-tution, and has been for a century totally ex-ploded." This was said in 1792. And now ploded." This was said in 1792. And now we see what our Republican judges are declaring to be the law, in the middle of the nineteenth century, in this free republic.

The interference of the English Courts to save men from military usurpation, is familiar to every reader of English history, and especially to every Constitutional lawyer. The celebrated Theobald Wolfe Tone was taken in the control of the cont open rebellion on board a French ship-of-war, and had been tried in Ireland under a proclamation of martial law, and condemned to death, and was in the hands of the Provost Marshal, "as the military hangman is called," when Curran came, in breathless haste, to the Court of King's Bench, in Ireland, for a writ f habeas corpus, which was at once granted. But, my Lord," said Curran to the Chief Jusbut, my Bold, said current the Chief sus-tice, Lord Kilwarden, "while the writ is being prepared, my client dies;" whereupon the Sheriff was ordered to repair to the place of execution, and command the Provost Marshal to produce his prisoner, which the Marshal re-fused to do, pleading the order of the com-manding officer. Whereupon the commaning officer and the Provost Marshal were ar-rested and brought into court, and made their humble submission to the dignity of English law and English liberty; which would never be done before Judge Leavitt, or any other usillanimous or time-serving judge.
Chief Justice Willes, too, in the English

Court of Common Pleas, when one Lieutenant Frye had been illegally punished by courtmartial, he belonging to the Royal Marines, and had brought an action against Admiral Ogle, gave judgment for £1,000 ($5,000) damages; and in the course of the trial intimates an opinion that every member of the court was hable to an action for the illegal sentence; and upon this the injured party brought ac-tions against the members of the court, who another court-martial, which they resented as an insult, and passed resolutions highly derog-atory to the Chief Justice. These were reported to the Admiralty and to the King, George II., who signified to the Admiralty, through the Duke of Newcastle, "His Majesty's great displeasure at the insult effered to the court-martial, by which the military discibline of the navy is so much affected."

But Lord Chief Justice Willes was not a man to be overawed in the performance of his duty, even by the power of royalty, and, as soon as the resolutions were made known to him, he ordered all the members of the court into custody for contempt, and was proceeding to bring them to punishment, when the persons all signed a paper making a very hum-Civil war divides the community, even in ble submission and apology for their miscon-Common Pleas, where the Chief Justice was then presiding, "as a memorial," said the Chief Justice, "to present and future ages,

> We feel no disposition to occupy more space n the examination of this shallow production of Judge Leavitt. The only lawyerlike thing in it is the frank admission, that it the provis-ions of the United States Constitution are in force and the basis of judging of the proceed-ings against Mr. Vallandigham, it will be im-possible to defend them. This is followed by putting down the rebellion, to which we artily respond. Secession was the work of conspirators in he interest of politicians at the South. The discovery or invention of what are now called "the war powers of Congress and of the President' has grown out of the rebellion, for the purpose of accomplishing the designs of conspirators at the North. It may properly be termed an invention, because in two wars in which the Republic has been engaged, at different periods, one to assert rights violated and outraged by Great Britain, and one in reality with a design of conquest, waged under the plea of wrongs, which if true required no such resort to arms, nothing was heard or eard of them now had it not been that cerain politicians of an ultra school had an object to accomplish, which could not be ef-ected by any of the powers heretofore sup-cosed to exist under the Constitution (an us), and being unwilling, with here and there an exception, to avow their object as evolution, they have sought to disguise it under the pretence of constitutional authority. A claim is set up, through the means of these war powers, to change the institutions of the States at the pleasure of Congress, or of the President—a claim that the President may stitute martial law over States within which no hostile foot has trod, or is likely to treadnotice that they are to be subjected to the government of force, is the arrest which confines them in the dungeon—and a claim that the President may suspend the writ of habeas corpus, throughout the United States, so that hat imprisonment will continue at the pleasthe President in his mercy or justice rescinds If these claims are valid, every person at the South, whether loyal or disloyal, holds the title to his property at the pleasure of the President; and every person at the North re-tains his liberty, only until a presidential fiat, or the warrant of some judge advocate, is-ned, perhaps, upon a vague and unfounded sus-icion, deprives him of it. Claiming to be powers derived from and nder the Constitution, these war powers subvert all constitutional principle. Pretending to be the instruments of republicanism, they turn the Government into a military ism. Assuming to be an agency of a free gov-ernment, their exercise at once puts an end to all constitutional liberty. Professing to be brought into action for the purpose of eman-cipating three millions of slaves, they consign o political slavery twenty millions of freemen

I propose to show that there is no sound foundation on which to rest any such extreme 'War Powers' as are claimed for Congress, and or the President.

There is nothing in the language of the Constitution which sustains the assumption of any such power.

[From a Letter of Dr. Lord's] Whether we are to enjoy any longer civil and religious liberty, is the dark problem be-fore us. FROM THE SOUTHERN KENTUCKY ADVANCE SOMBRSET, KY., June 1, 1863.

Wolford's cavalry still holds the advance along the Cumberland, guarding the fords and protecting the border counties from the enemy. They have made two daring raids upon us, and we have returned the compliment by making two upon them. We sleep (when we sleep at all) in the woods under our saddle blankets, lying upon our arms, ready to sup-port our picket line in case of attack. They broke the picket truce by dashing over upon two of our picket posts, six nights ago, and capturing Captain Dillion and seventeen of our men at different points, firing upon them without even ordering a surrender. Major Owens, however, gallantly repulsed them in their attack upon his post, killing and wounding several of them. A company of the 45th Ohio, mounted infantry, captured a Lieutenant and four men, and they afterwards acknowledged that they had made nothing by the raid, as mentioned in my last letter we were not satisfied, however, and Lieuten-ant Colonel Adams, with about one hundred more of Wolford's men, was sent forward to support our line and make a dash upon their pickets if he thought he could capture them. Another furious raid was made from the rear upon our lowest picket post before we reached hem, wounding one and capturing two more of our men. We had now come up with our upport, and the Colonel determined at once to make a dash at them and put them upon the defensive. He charged the river with a hun-dred men, below Richardson's Ford, swimming a part of the way, and surprised and cap-tured a Lieutenant and five men in open day, and put their whole camp in alarm.

After a long scout we returned to our position and rested, although a large force soon appeared in our front and began to fire across at our pickets. The Colonel then planned another attack, determined not to rest until he had taken as many as they had taken of ours. Before the time set for its execution, how-ever, he received an order from Gen. Carter to do the very thing he had planned, and that Col. Rantz, of the 2d Ohio cavalry, with de-tachments from his own and the 7th Ohio and ture those at the other fords above Hart's. leaving us two posts as our part of the work. Col. Adams, at 2 o'clock, began to pass fifty men over in a canoe, a mile below the Mill Spring picket. He headed this force himself, and left Major Owens to be ready to charge across the river with some seventy more and the horses of these fifty, in case of a fight in front, or if he was successful. He divided his men into three squads, headed by Captains Carter and Drye and Lieut. Keene. They did not know how large a force they would en-counter, and hence the necessity of daring and caution. Lieut. Keene knocked at a citizen's" door, and he demanded who was Keene told him that he had con find his pickets, but that he believed they had been captured, as he could only find six of them, and accused the old man of having aided the "Yankees." He denied it, and the old lady called out that they were good Southern Rights people, and had fed his men and done all they could for them, and that he ought not to talk so to them. The Lieutenant then asked where the picket stood, when he saw them last, and how many had been sent to that post that night. He replied that there were twelve of them, as he had counted them that very evening, and that they were up in the store house on the hill. He offered to come out and show him, but he told him to stay in his house lest the Yankees should see him. He had now all the information necessary, and told it to Col. Adams, who then ordered his men to charge upon the house at three points, but not to fire. As they rushed up three ran in and gave the alarm, and, as Captain Drye mounted the fence, one of them ran out his rifle at the door, not over five steps from him, and was about to fire. "Fire is you dare, and I'll kill you!" said the Captain He dropped his gun, and, seeing they had no chance, they all surrendered without the fire charge across the river on our horses, and annced their success, and we all passed quiet

The lake Victoria Nyanza, which these two Englishmen have thus ascertained to be the true source or headwaters of the White Nile, was discovered by Capt. Speke on the 3d Aug., 1858. Let the Administration do this, and the people on their part under the folds of the Union flag. It added will rally around it as one man. The Administration has in its own hands and has had from the beginning the whole question of unity or division in the loyal ranks. Would to heaven, that, by a noble exertion of lofty will deal with the piratical affair as it deat last solve this question in the interest of unity and of the national salvation. NEW ENGLAND CHAMPIONS OF LAW AND the Union and the Constitution, Liberty, Law, and Religion-is furnishing the noblest and strongest and bravest defenders and vindicators of all the sacred rights thus impiously Never was the capacity of any people for self-government so severely tested as is now that of the American people. Assailed on the one side by a gigantic rebellion which aims at the life of the country, the abolition faction seizes the fearful conjuncture, contrived and plotted by themselves as we have often proved to demonstration, as the occasion and the pretext for the destruction of all constitutional and legal government.

Our case is not singular in this respect. All conspiracies against the people, in all past history, have pleaded for their apology the fatal necessity of times of peril and commotion. Usually the plea has been successfully urged, and the liberties of the people have gone down, to rise no more but in fitful outbreaks of revolutionary violence. The same exigency is upon us now as has been upon the nations that have preceded us, except as to the mightier dimensions and the more enduring issues of the conflict. What is imperatively demanded of us is, that, while we bring to bear the whole power of the country against the insane violence that would take away its life, we oppose a sleepless vigilance and an equal but different form of resistance to that domestic treason, in and out of office, which seeks to destroy American liberty and law under the pretext of putting down the ruthless rebellion.

To accomplish this mighty task, to fulfil a destiny so momentous and so pregnant with the highest interests of man for all future time, it will not do, for a moment, to forget or to lose sight of the dangers on either hand. It will not do, as some have counselled, to let the rebellion alone until we have corrected all the outrages which have been perpetrated upon the law and the Constitution, for this would be to yield up the Republic to destruction. Nor will it do to neglect and pass by these outrages, while we are putting down the rebellion; for this would be to permit usurpation playery to which any people was ever subjected—a military despotism controlled by whining knaves and canting hypocrites.

> We have just returned from a visit to the Army of the Cumberland at and around Murfreesboro. We were greatly delighted with its condition, physical and moral. The numerous encampments are the neatest, the handsomest, the healthiest, and the most comfortable ever seen in this or in any country and the troops exhibit a discipline that would have done honor to the veterans of Napoleon or Wellington. The soldiers are evidently burning with a noble and enthusiastic desire to meet the enemy and put an end to the war by one grand and crushing blow, but they have learned to repress all expressions and feelings of discontent, satisfied that their action is under the control of brave and patriotic men who are entitled in all things to their utmost confidence.

Gen. Rosecrans and his chief officers realize our highest ideas of military leaders. Such an army as that of the Cumberland, led by such officers, must and will, under any ordinary circumstances, prove invincible and resistless. We do not tremble even when we consider that the destinies of this mighty Republic are staked, to a great extent, upon its

If he does not, for what party does he speak? Not certainly for the Union Democratic party, because that although the true National Democratic party is already in existence, and because, furthermore, he repudiates its platform. Does he speak for the abolition party? He will not own that he does. He, then, must speak for the secession party, or speak for no party at all. Is really this last our neighbor's predicament? Are indeed "none so poor to do him reverence"? If so, we magnanimously curb our raillery, and respectfully entreat him to come back to the to be consolidated into a system to which the fold of the Union Democracy or National Depublic feeling would be accustomed, and under | mocracy if he prefers the title, where, after a nich it would have learned to be quiescent; suitable probation with a favorable issue, the and the end would be, whatever other issue "word of Cæsar" may once more stand who have shown their willingness to lose all for their country.

General Stoneman, Chief of Cavalry, says: "Men not accustomed to war will call it cowardly to wear a Bullet Proof Vest—tell them that I wear one, for if my life is worth giving for my country, it is worth preserving for my country and family."

Major Anderson, of the 19th Missouri Volunteers, nephew of General Robert Anderson, was struck by a minie ball on the left breast, and not injured. He says that his vest saved his life.

Colonel Davis, of the 1st Wisconsin Cavalry, in the recent action on the St. Francis River, wore one of these Vests, and, whilst leaning from his horse directing the fire of a cannon, was struck by a ball on the right breast, and says that his life was saved without doubt by his precaution in putting on this Vest before going into action—see St. Louis Democrat of June 5th.

J. W. Codfrey, Agent of the Chartr Oak Life Insurance Co., insured the life of the Chief of General Grant's Staff for $5,000. When he heard of the Bullet Proof Yest, he purchased one and sent it to him. It was received just before the battle of Ptitsburg Land-

To privates, sizes No. 1, 2, and 3, at $13 00 each To officers, " 1, 2, and 3, at 15 00 "

To officers, " 1, 2, and 3, at 15 09 "
For extra large sizes the prices will be from $17 to 318.
The steel linings in all the vests are alike, the difference in price is caused by the difference in the cloth und trimmings used in making the two styles of vests.
Prompt attention will be given to all orders, by mail or express, accompanied by the cash. If the Vest is to be sent by express to the army, an additional sum of $1.00 should be enclosed to prepay the freight. If three or more Vests are ordered to be sent at once, the freight but be prepaid by the Agent. In making orders, it will be necessary to send the number of inches around the breast, and the length of person from neck to waist; this will sufficiently indicate the size of the Vest to be sent. OFFICE LOUISVILLE WATER CO., Louisville, Ky., June 4, 1863.

IT HAS COME TO THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE Board that persons taking water for their own use have furnished their neighbors; others, having paid for street sprinklers to sprinkle one-half of the street in front of their premises, sprinkle the entire street as far as their hose will reach on either side of it; others, again, who have paid only for street sprinklers, use the water from them to fill their cisterns or supply their heuses. The extent of these abuses is such it is deemed proper to remind all persons using water that they must comply with the rules of the company, and that a violation of them will involve the necessity of turning off the water without further notice. Persons wishing to use more water than they have contracted for can have it on application and payment for same. By order of the Board.

Improved for 1863. THE ONLY PERFECT COMBINED MACHINE IN USE,

Having Two Distinct Motions.

A Slow Motion to the Sickle in Reaping, A Fast Motion to the Knife in Mowing. DY THIS IMPROVEMENT WE ENTIRELY Davoid the great difficuly heretofore found in all Combined Machines having but one speed, which is too rapid for reaping and too slow for mowing, causing unnecessary wear and tear of the Machine in reaping as well as increased draft.

THE KENTUCKY BROAD-GAUGE

This Machine is only intended for Reaping, and was introduced by us in 1860, and is a complete success.

It is designed for the use of very large grain growers, and is capable of cutting from 20 to 25 acres of any kind of grain per day with ease. Price at Louisville - - $120 Cash.

Cuts a Swath Seven Feet Wide.

A 2-WHEEL IRON MOWER.

Among the policy of the may be enumerated:

First—It has two independent driving wheels, both drivers (yet with but one set of gear). The wheels are each coupled to the shaft is a pawl and ratchet, so that in backing the machine is always out of gear, yet when moving forwardmay be threwn in or out of gear of pleasure. at pleasure.

Second—The cutter bar is jointed, or hinged, so as to readily adjust itself to uneven surfaces, and is easily raised by means of a lever, to pass over obstructions. It may also be raise and folded over in rear of the frame. It is made o the best cast-steel, but of the frame. It is made o the best cast-steel, but rigid and strong.

Third—The entire machine, with the exception of the tongue, is made of ironand steel, yet very light, weighing less than 600 pounds. Width of swath, four eet three inches.

GENTLEMEN:—I have tried your Kentucky Clipper in the same field with a "Buckeye," cutting clover and timothy. The ground was very rough, and consequently neither machine could cut very close; but there was a vast difference between the cut of the Buckeye and the cut of the Clipper. The Ulipper's work was at least knowly-five per cut the best. The Buckeye can cut a little more than the Clipper, for two roasons, viz: It cuts a little wint the Clipper, for two roasons, viz: It cuts a little wint of the clipper, cut the most, for the Buckeye was retained for repairs, and this is the great difficult with the Buckeye—it is so constructed that it must shatter to pieces in two seasons. I am perfectly satisfied I would rather have the Clipper at the same price. I do not think that the draft of the Clipper is much mere than half that of the Buckeye. he Buckeye.

We noticed yesterday in the neighborhood of the Provost Marshal's office a number of females-some of them with little children in their arms—the wives of soldiers, in most cases dead, in a most destitute condition, without money and almost without apparel. They complain that they cannot get employment from any source whatever; that they have tried in every direction, and yet have met no sailants. We shall, doubtless, have particuencouragement. This is a hard picture to lars to-day.—Nashville Union. look upon. These women gave up their husbands to fight in the defence of a country's future for something on which to live; and now their protectors are dead and gone, and they "have not where to lay their head." Is it not the imperative duty of everybody to sist in taking care of these poor, unfortunate creatures? And even if we did not owe it to them, who have so nobly gave up those they love to the country, should not a feeling of philanthropy prompt us to do something in their behalf? Let them be properly taken render them at least comfortable, if not happy.

have interfered sadly with the fortunes of Woodlawn. When it was first opened a few years since, its prospects were most flattering, and the spring and fall meetings were distinguished not only for the fine quality of the racing, but for the very large and brilliant attendance of ladies and gentlemen which graced it. There should be an earnest effort made to restore the pleasures which we then enjoyed. make the place such a fashionable ort as it was originally contemplated that it should be. For next week such arrangeents have been made as will insure the creature comforts of visitors, for Messrs. Cawein & ohlhept, of Walker's Exchange, have charge of the commissary department and will offer their usual liberal supply of eatables and drinkables, and their mixtures have acquired a world-wide celebrity which renders this angramme. With one of their sherry cobblers Xeves, or the aromatic flavor of the emerald mentha, a gentleman may bet on his favorite horse without the least danger of losing, or, as Charles Surface says of the exhilerating effects of champagne, it will be all the same thing, for he won't feel his losses. Let us prepare then for the week's sport at Woodlawn, and

They were doubtless reminded of that injunction of the Scriptures, that "it is hard to kick against the pricks." We understand that several parties in this city have allowed themselves to be prosecuted for a like offence, and that they look for a decision in their favor. They are referred to the above cases and advised to take them under special consideration and learn > ATTACK ON FRANKLIN.—Prolonged and heavy firing was heard in this city yesterday afternoon, continuing to the close of the day. Everybody was on the qui vive, anxious to learn what was going on, and where the big guns were that made so much noise. The next week, when we shall have some exciting various scenes are moved with great precisior, troting matches. The troubles of the times and all the various accompaniments incident to the scenes are given true to nature by the aid of machinery. The effects thus produced are very natural and beautiful. Each view is explained in a pleasing manner by a competent lecturer. This afternoon at half-past two o'clock a performance will be given for the accommodation of families who cannot attend in the evening. As this afternoon and to-night are the only opportunities of seeing this great panorama, we would advise all those who have not yet seen it to go by all means.

Mr. Bonde, who was among them, stated that he was not a delegate from Bracken, and was understood to say that he did not know that any one had been appoint-ed from that county. Then a committee on per-mament organization and rules was appointed, which reported, through its chairman, M. M. Benton, the usual parliamentary rules, and Amos Shinkle for President, Hon. S. F. Swope for Vice President, and a Mr. Thompson, of Newport, for Secretary, and H. E. Wilson, for Assistant. Then a committee on resolutions, one from every county represented, was ap-rointed. M. M. Benton, from Kenton; Ira Root, from Campbell; the others not remem-bered. The convention took a recess for dinner. In the afternoon the President called the convention to order, and it was agreed to go into the nomination of a candidate for Congress, when some dele proposed to have the resolutions before nomination, which proposition the President declared out of order, because it came too late. He announced that "the convention would now proceed to elect a Congressman." Gen. Jno. W. Finnell, Gen. Green Clay Smith, W. W. Trimble, W. S. Rankin, and Col. J. J. W. Trimble, W. S. Rankin, and Col. J. J. Landrum were put in nomination. Mr. Trimble being present declined, and Mr. Rankin declined by letter. Fifty-seven votes were necessary to a choice. Gen. Smith got 58½ on the first ballot—27 from Kenton, the entire delegation, 14 from Campbell, and the rest here and there from the different counties. He was then declared the surprise of the counties. ent. He was present and accepted in a few well-expressed remarks, saying that he conwell-expressed remarks, saying that he sidered that the nomination amounted to an election; and whilst he was speaking M. M. Benton, Esq., brought in and read the report and resolutions, and Gen. Smith continued that they suited him exactly, that the committee seemed to have made an effort "to steal him thunder." the resolutions were just what his thunder;" the resolutions were just what he was about to utter. Look Out! Good News for All!

THE NEVER-FAILING MADAME ISABEL SNELL is the best. She succeeds when all others have failed. All who are in trouble; all who have been unfortunate; all whose fond kepes have been disappointed, crushed, and blasted by false promises and deceit—all fit to her for advice and satisfaction.

In love affairs she nover fails, She shows you the likeness of your future husband or wife. She guides the single to a happy marriage. Her ald and advice have been solicited in innumerable instances, and the result has always been the means of securing a speedy and happy marriage. She is therefore a sure dependence. and happy marriage. She is therefore a sure dependence.

It is well known to the public at large that she was the first and she is now the only person in this country who can show the likeness in reality, and who can give entire satisfaction on all the concerns of life, which can be attested and proved by thousands, both married and single, who daily and easerly visit her. To all in business her advice is invaluable. She can foretel, with the greatest certainty, the result of all commercial and business transactions. Madame Snell is a bota fide Astrologist that every one can depend upon. She is the greatest Astrologist of the nineteenth century. Some ladies may be a little timid, though they need not fear, for she practices nothing but what is reconcilable to pallosophere; in fact a single visit will satisfy the most factidious of her respectability, moral rectitude, and of the purity of her profession and practice. All interviews are strictly private and confidential; therefore come, one—come all.
